STRATEGIC LEARNING

Take it personally

You and your trainer -your coach- simulate from the very first appointment, that what you will subsequently need: effective communication and interpersonal understanding. That's why you can't start practicing early enough. Communication is much more than words and rules. The personal interaction and the personal communication experience that you learn with us individually or in a small group are so important. So that you have a lot of talking time and your trainer has time for your individual development.

Don't make any compromises with your personal development, so that you retain your personality even in a foreign language.

This means that you have the choice of different concepts. If it's for a specific work related reason, then it makes sense to have a functional emphasis right from the start. If it's to improve your general language ability then we have our proven CE program in line with the "Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR)". However you want.
